the questions set thereon : For centuries, men have watched the bleak mysterious moon drill across the heavens and have created myths about its power; how it influenced weather, harvests and even human behaviour including love and lunacy. Slowly, reluctantly, men have learned to discard these superstitious notions of the mythical ties between the earth and the moon. Yet very real physical ties do exist; the moon's pulling power causes the tides of ocean and seas to swell and ebb and the moon's reflective power illuminates our night skies.

(a) What were the superstitious notions about the moon ?

(b) What are the physical ties between the moon and the earth ?
